

ABSTRACT

To make it possible to fix various organic molecules in an arbitrary configuration or arrangement on a micro/nano scale as a cheap and simple process by irradiating a photocurable resin containing an organic molecule on a substrate with light, thereby curing the photocurable resin in a given pattern and removing an uncured portion, thereby fixing the organic molecule in the given pattern on the substrate.